Dear Mr. Schreck:

RE: FINAL SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT AND RELEASE

This letter is a follow-up to recent conversations between you and British Columbia Lottery Corporation ("BCLC") with respect to the 'Never Miss a Draw!' multiple play ticket you had purchased on PlayNow.

On July 6 2007, BCLC offered to provide to you $500 as a gesture of our appreciation to you for bringing to our attention a potential improvement to one of BCLC's products. You requested that the funds should be provided to a charity of your choice.

In order to provide you with the funds, BCLC requested that you sign a release agreement, which includes a confidentiality clause. This is a typical business practice accompanying customer service gestures which allows BCLC to make such gestures in appreciation where the organization deems it is warranted.

Because you have decided not to sign the release agreement as presented, BCLC is unable to provide you, and in this case the charity you named as recipient, with the payment.

Once again, we thank you for bringing to our attention a potential improvement to one of our products.

Yours truly,
